Honors Theatre Appreciation combines the studies of theatre and dramatic literature with the contemporary practices of theatrical production. Students view and analyze live performances on and off campus, as well evaluate published scripts, study historical events, explore theatrical professions and more. Learning to communicate using theatre terminology enhances the development of the student’s individual creative process. The context of contemporary theatre practice provides experience collaborating and solving problems within an artistic framework.